I'm not robot!

Manistee river fishing report below tippy dam. Should i fish above or below a dam. Is it better to fish above or below a dam.

The Manistee River below Tippy Dam fishing report for late July. Water Levels are normal for this time of year, but water is extremely clear. Not sure I have ever seen the Big Manistee below Tippy Dam this clear. Our main focus this time of year is on Bass and Pike. With top-water and streamer tactics giving us the best opportunities. The first signs of Kings have shown up, now the pods that I've seen are small groups. But Salmon are now in the Big River. Not uncommon for an early push, but wow do I feel bad for these guys. With the hottest temps of the summer and low clear water, not a good combo for the fish that have showed up already. Smallmouth Bass Fishing Manistee River Smallmouth Fishing Smallmouth bass fishing feels as if some of our best smallmouth bass days are behind us, as early in the season was extremely good. But with water low and clear now, the game has gotten a tab bit challenging. I have really had to downsize the patterns, and some of my best top water patterns don't chug. Dead drifting or skating large attractor patterns near structure. One key thing to remember when smallmouth bass fishing later in the summer, is that most minnows that smallmouth are key in one are at their smallest. So down sizing to a size 8 hook can get you some of the best results. Summer Gear Still have a few sizes of our Summer Gear in stock. Any questions feel free to drop us a line. The Hand Towel and the T-shirts have been a big hit so far. Thank you for all the support. Booking a Trip The fishing right now is in the dog days of summer. Ed is on his Mousing program , Jeff is in AK for the rest of the summer, and I'm bouncing between trout water and smallmouth sections. If you're looking to book a Trout/Bass/Pike Fishing Trip give us a call at (231-631-5701) or shoot us an email . Heading into summer we will over both full day and half day adventures for smallmouth bass on the lower Manistee river below Tippy Dam. Not too early to book your Fall Steelhead trip as well, still a few dates open. Tight Lines, Jon Ray River Flows Manistee - Wellston Pere Marquette - Scottville Au Sable - Mio Boardman - Beltner Fall is in the air and leaves are starting to turn. King Salmon have started up area rivers, next up...Steelhead Lower Manistee River For our purpose the "Lower Manistee River" means below Tippy Dam. From Tippy to Lake Michigan there are 32 miles of meandering river home to trout, steelhead, salmon, bass, pike and a host of other fish species. Here's a few guides and outfitters to check on Lower Manistee fishing reports. Jon Ray's Mangled Fly, Hawkins Outfitters and The Northern Angler. Fall 2021 It's almost here, the fall run of Salmon and Steelhead...get ready. Upper Manistee River The "Upper Manistee" generally means everything up-river from Tippy Dam. Most anglers associate the Upper Manistee with places like Sharon, CCC, M-72, etc. This is some of Michigan's most hallowed trout waters. Browns, rainbows and brookies call this home. Fall is the perfect time of the year for very small dry flies and nymphs but most anglers like streamer fishing in Michigan in the autumn. We recommend Jon Ray's Mangled Fly or Gate's AuSable Lodge for this area's fishing report. Pere Marquette River Not much more can be said about the world famous Pere Marquette. Great trout fishing and runs of salmon and steelhead from Lake Michigan. October and November are peak times for these species so be prepared for crowds from time to time. We recommend Baldwin Bait and Tackle for the best "PM" reports. Posted on October 4, 2020 July 7, 2021 by Chadbetts ©2021 The Orvis Company, Inc. Since 1856. The Manistee is running very low and clear at 1290 CFS and is about 71 degrees, perfect for smallmouth bass. I've been finding small and largemouth bass and some pike in all the likely spots. Tailouts, 3-6 feet of water around wood, crossovers etc. The fish have been eating a variety of White and Chartreuse patterns, White Hat Tricks, Southern Charms and Tutty Fruity Clousers. Topwater action has been good under the right conditions, mainly low light. We are beginning to see some King Salmon show, not fishable numbers but there are some around. I'm hearing that they are very big this year but not big numbers. We shall see. July and August are prime time for bass fishing. They are a great casting and fishing tune up! Give us a call at 231-228-7135 to get a full or half day in the book. Tight Lines Capt. Chuck October Morning on the Manistee Tippy Dam is known for its migratory runs of Steelhead and Salmon. The dam itself is the upper boundary of these great game fish that leave the big water of Lake Michigan and return to their natal river to take part in their spawning mission. Beyond steelhead and salmon, anglers will find healthy populations of both Brown & Rainbow Trout and Smallmouth Bass. The river below the dam is some of the widest water in the state, varying from 200 - 300 feet in width. Depths vary depending on run, pool, tail-out relationship but all wading anglers will want to be cautious when on foot - especially in times of stained run-off conditions. Spring Below Tippy Dam Much of the land adjacent to the river is USFS property and is open to the public. As you move downriver and approach the High Bridge access and Bridge, private property becomes intermixed. Those fishing the Manistee are typically best served fishing from a boat as not only is it a strong and often deep river, but a lot of submerged logs can trip you up, a reminder of the lumbering days of northern Michigan. The FishSalmon King/Chinook Salmon Most anglers have heard of "The Big River" from stories told by a friend or articles in magazines. This river simply has one of the best salmon runs in the lower 48 states. Chinook (King) Salmon are the most common salmon, but Coho (silvers) numbers seem to be getting stronger each year. While snagging was once legal years ago, the practice is no longer legal or acceptable. With the big fish come some crowds, so having the place to yourself isn't a problem in the Spring and Fall. There are sections of the river that tend to be less populated and are some of my favorite sections. Frankly, there are plenty of fish to go around in the Big Manistee. Fall Steelhead Fall Steelhead The Fall Steelhead follow the salmon into the river each year at the end of September and continue to build in numbers through the fall. When water temperatures are good and water/river levels are strong after a fall rain - things only get better. Hooking a fall steelhead that has been living on a steady diet of salmon eggs in 50-degree water can give you the hardest, most unpredictable and spastic fight you can imagine a freshwater fish could provide. Throughout the winter anglers will find fall fish that become characterized as "winter fish." With those hold-over fish comes trickles of new fish throughout the winter months, and those looking to get a cabin-fever-reliever can find some fish to play the game while getting away from the four walls that seem to close in on us during the Fall Steelhead winter months. Spring Steelhead Spring Steelhead Spring Steelhead are typically in the river system in good numbers from Mid-March through the first part of May. Fish that entered in the fall and winter join the newly arrived fish with their intent to spawn and thus the number/population of fish in the river are at their highest. A Right of Spring, fishing for steelhead is one of the best times for people to get into steelhead and after a winter spent indoors, it feels good to get fishing again. Look for a warm rain to bring up the water temps and levels bringing up a fresh "run" of fish in the river. Read more about Steelhead here > Brown Trout Brown Trout Throughout the spring steelhead run, anglers usually find their fly rods bent, but not by the sheer weight of a Steelhead alone. There is a healthy population of Brown Trout in this section of the river that remains here all year. And why should they leave? The dam itself creates a tail water fishery which equates to a food factory. Large populations of scuds and sowbugs provide a healthy diet for the fish when the midges and baetis aren't around. In the spring and fall there are literally thousands of pounds of eggs drifting down the river from spawning fish for the trout to eat. If that isn't enough, there are lots of fry from steelhead, salmon, suckers and walleye which makes this fishery an all-you-can-eat fish dinner for the resident trout. Ever see a trout with stretch marks? This is the place where they live. Trout fishing below Tippy Dam is scenic, solitary and peaceful river setting compared to the spring and fall seasons when the migratory fish are in season. Fishing remains good until early July when water temperatures become dangerous for trout survival but turn optimal for Smallmouth Bass. Smallmouth Bass Smallmouth Bass Smallies migrate into the river as water temps increase and can provide both great streamer and Trout Fishing Below Tippy Dam top-water action. Targeting wood /structure, these "bronzebacks" are fun to play along with and their ability to jump is awesome. I only wish they grew to 20 pounds! Gaudy baitfish streamers one day, loud poppers and sneaky sliders the next offer the angler a variety of conditions during the warmer months of Summer. Tippy Dam on the Manistee River At one time the dam significantly fluctuated water levels on a daily basis when "peak electricity demands" required it. Through efforts of the Federation of Fly Fishers, Consumer Power and PERC, this now is a "run of river" where the amount of water flow above the dam is what comes out of the dam. This has helped eliminate some of the erosion and as a result has exposed a lot of gravel for both aquatic insects and natural reproduction. Map & Directions Tippy Dam is 25 miles West of the City of Manistee, just north of Wellston and East of Brethren 4 miles. Coming from Cadillac the drive is about 40 miles. It takes an hour from downtown Traverse City.
